WORRY ABOUT
MOFFETT JOBS

Sunnyvale Workers So Far Without Word
Of Future

Approximately 130 civilian employees at Moffett Field, Sunnyvale, are wondering about the status of their jobs today when it became known that 400 civilian employees of Rockwell Field, San Diego, will come to Sunnyvale when the army officially takes charge of the station, October 26.

Civilians have received no orders as to their future destination. Many expected to be transferred as the San Diego station has been the overhaul base for West Coast army planes and Sunnyvale's machine shops were designed only to maintain the motors of the ill-fated dirigible, Macon.

Officials at Moffett Field are awaiting arrival of Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commanding officer of general headquarters of the air force, now en route from Langley field, Virginia. He will take charge of the army's plans for the future of the field. Anticipating the commander's arrival, army planes this afternoon were taking aerial photographs of the field.

Red Cross Here Launches Drive
To Reduce Accidents in Homes

More than one-third of all fatal accidents and nearly half of all accidental injuries are sustained in and about the home.

With such startling statements does the American National Red Cross through James Eva, councilman and chairman of the safety and accident committee of the local Red Cross, justify the two months' drive underway today of the Home and Farm Accident Prevention Program.

Under the general direction of Mrs. Z. T. Thorning, executive chairman, Eva plans an educational campaign to be carried out by speakers in the schools, service and women's clubs, which will bring to public mind such facts, choosing the more unusual, as these: that the round type of goldfish bowl is a common home fire hazard. If set near a window, the sun, striking through it, is focused to a pinpoint of heat potent enough to set fire to even a well-waxed floor.

That ordinary flour and cornstarch are highly explosive. When sifting, be careful to prevent a breeze from an open window or

Two Transformers Hit
In Unusual Display
Of Lightning

Only minor damage was done to Pacific Gas and Electric Company equipment by the electrical storm on Tuesday and no harm was done by the storm to county crops.

Officials of the utilities company said that one transformer had been blown out near Emerald Lake and minor troubles had developed near Woodside. Few consumers were inconvenienced, however.

Agricultural Commissioner Max Leonard said that the storm had done no damage to crops, and the rain had been too short to do any good.

To an accompaniment of thunder and repeated flashes of lightning, the freak electrical storm struck simultaneously over San Mateo, Gilroy and Fresno, according to the United States Weather Bureau, while some lightning streaked close to San Francisco.

POWER LINES CRIPPLED

No serious damage was reported from the storm, although power lines at Gilroy were crippled temporarily and at least one peninsula home was plunged into darkness when lightning struck a transformer near the home of Richard T. Suden in back of Redwood City.

Lightning streaked across the sky at close intervals from 3 to 5 a. m. near San Mateo, while residents of other peninsula communities said the storm was the greatest electrical display they had seen in a decade.

Eight Other Persons Are Injured in Auto Wrecks

Near death, Doris Roth of Redwood City, is in a San Jose hospital today from injuries suffered when the automobile in which she was riding plunged off the Big Basin highway last night. The accident occurred in a deep canyon, four miles west of the Saratoga summit.

Joe Matto, Miss Roth's companion, also of Redwood City, escaped with only slight injuries, as the car crashed several hundred feet off the road. He clambered up the canyon side, reached the highway and summoned the assistance of passing motorists. They went back for Miss Roth, improvising a stretcher with which they carried her to the road.

CRASH ON COASTSIDE

Both severely injured after smashing into concrete bridge corner 2 miles north of Half Moon Bay at 6:45 a. m. today Amado Orto, 25, and Emily Pacheco, 16, were reported in "fair condition" by doctors at the San Mateo Community Hospital.

Traffic Patrolman Jack Quinlan who investigated the accident said their machine smashed into the bridge full tilt without the slightest application of brakes.

Orto, who suffered a laceration cutting to the bone of his wrist, broken ribs and severe face lacerations, told the patrolman the steering wheel of the car jammed and the brakes refused to work when the machine plunged out of control.

The girl was thought dead at first by Quinlan. Her pulse was found to be beating, however, and the hospital listed her injuries as severe face lacerations, deep gash in the knee and general shock.

The car was demolished. The pair, Porto Ricans, were going to work at the E. E. Digges' ranch on the coastside when the accident happened. They were treated by Dr. R. T. Borley at Half Moon Bay and then transferred to the San Mateo County Community Hospital.

S. F. MAN INJURED

W. P. Roth, 72, 1092 York street, San Francisco, was treated at the South San Francisco Hospital Sunday afternoon for severe head and facial cuts incurred when his car and one driven by Ugo Micheli, 818 14th street, San Francisco, collided on the Bayshore highway at Brisbane.

Four San Franciscans were injured when the car driven by Gino Della Santina attempted to avoid crashing into a car driven by the late John White. Della Santina, who lost two front teeth; his children, Robert, 12, crushed left foot; Vera, 9, fractured left arm; and Malvin, 7, loosened front teeth. The father was unhurt. The injured were treated at the Mills Memorial Hospital in San Mateo.

Struck down by a hit-runner, Benjamin Einhorn, 32, San Francisco painter, was at Mills Hospital Sunday suffering from a bruised right arm and side. He was walking along El Camino Real late yesterday when an unknown driver ran him down and then sped on.

CITY SLASHES 20 CENTS
OFF RATE ON 1915 DEBT

Twenty cents were cut off of the 1935-36 Redwood City tax rate by the city council Monday, in keeping with the promise of the board that this would be done if the voters approved a $425,000 refunding bond issue to pay off the 1915 act improvements done here between 1924 and 1931.

The city tax rate thus will be $1.15 per $100 in 1935-36 instead of $1.35 as set September 3.

More than anxious to meet the pledge to the voters, the council, upon motion of Evans Fletcher, seconded by George McNulty, voted to instruct City Clerk B. E. Myers and City Collector Nelle Miramontes to apply the new rate of $1.15 on the 1935-36 bills. The 20-cent cut left 10 cents of the original 30 cents put into the rate to help service the new issue.

An early test of the legality of the new city bonds is contemplated, after which the issue will be sold and the proceeds used to buy up the outstanding 7 per cent 1915 act bonds. The new bonds will bear an interest rate of 3 1/2 per cent.

Canvass of the vote showed the results of the election of last Tuesday to be as previously announced: Yes, 1001; no, 133, or 8 to 1.

Mayor Charles Lambert again expressed public appreciation for the widespread support of the bonds and for the assistance given by all city groups.

Councilman Louis Christensen, away on vacation, wired his congratulations on the city's good judgment from Fremont, Neb.

PIN GAME BAN WINS DELAY HERE

Pin games will not be banned by the city council if cooperation of merchants in preventing youngsters from gambling their lunch money can be secured, the council decreed Monday, after giving consideration to an ordinance proposing to outlaw the devices.

Storekeepers having the pin games in their premises will be asked by Police Chief C. L. Collins to post signs notifying minors that they will not be allowed to play the machines. Cooperation of school authorities in asking students not to waste their money on the boards will be asked.

Councilman James Eva, author of the plan to ban the pin games, said some 40 to 50 students could

General Will Remove Chestnut Plant
To Jefferson

Two oil station projects to cost $31,000 and to be undertaken by the General Petroleum Corporation and the Shell Oil Company were approved by the city council on Monday and work on each is to start immediately.

The General Petroleum Corporation will undertake a major project to cost approximately $25,000 in the removal of its plant from the Bayshore-Chestnut street location to its own property at Bayshore between Jefferson and Middlefield roads.

Heretofore the firm has been leasing property from Henry Beeger, former General agent, but plans now call for removal of the existing plant to the new location and erection of a service station, as well.

Bryce Muir, manager for General here, secured approval of both the city planning commission and the city council last night, after the project had been approved by City Building Inspector I. C. Drathman.

The Shell project calls for a $6,000 service station to be located on Perry street and Broadway under a lease obtained from the Southern Pacific Company. The station will be located opposite the San Mateo County Bank and will fill in the last remaining corner in the Upper Broadway block.

Larry Hausam, manager for Shell, and Julius Smith, who handled the deal, filed application for the permit, which was granted after approval by the planning commission.

Motions granting the two permits were put by Councilmen James Eva and Evans Fletcher.

Woman Onlooker Dies
Of Heart Attack
In Seeing Deed

Services were being arranged in San Francisco today for Fred Schouten, 44, Burlingame jeweler, who shot himself to death in his parked car at Ninth avenue and Lawton street, San Francisco, Saturday night. The shock of seeing him killed a woman onlooker.

Schouten, who lived at 338 Hermann street, San Francisco, fired a pistol bullet through his forehead with his right hand and clapsed in his left hand a note, saying:

"Life has been a disappointment."

The shot attracted Mrs. Lucy Mason, 805 Clayton street, San Francisco, a passerby, and the shock of seeing blood streaming down his face brought on a heart attack which proved fatal. The two were not acquainted, police said.

Schouten had been worried for some time over financial difficulties, the widow, Mrs. Dora Schouten, told San Francisco police.

Mills Airport Work Will Start Shortly

The $3,000,000 improvement program at the municipal airport can be gotten under way within a month and soon pushed to the point where it will give employment to from 2,000 to 3,000 workers, Utilities Manager Cahill announced yesterday.

After a conference with B. M. Doolin, airport manager, and L. T. McAfee, chief utilities engineer, Cahill said preliminary plans would be forwarded today to Washington for approval. Funds have been tentatively allocated by the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce.

The first work to be undertaken will be paving of runways and a seawall for an airship harbor.

The improvements, it is anticipated, will enable the airport to turn a $1,500 a month deficit into a profit for the city.

Progress Report
On 'Y' Campaign
Told at Luncheon

Building better boys is big business.

This was the feeling expressed by E. E. Myers, chairman of the Redwood City Young Men's Christian Association committee, and Norman Menifee, 1935 finance campaign chairman, and the other workers and members of the "Y" at a report meeting held Tuesday noon at the Fox Shoppe.

The purpose of the luncheon meeting today was to tabulate the progress reported by the captains of the teams and to further organize for the last few days of the campaign. A summary of this meeting Tuesday was to tabulate the work to each man working on the drive, so that he will be able to check his work in comparison with that of the other men.

Robert Simcock, executive of the peninsula branch, and Taylor Reedy, associate secretary, were present at the meeting.

Menifee said: "Although one could not say that the campaign so far has not been successful, every man will have to redouble his efforts and the last few days remaining in the campaign will have to be high production days, if Redwood City is to maintain the fine record she has always set in the past in this effort."

Richard Grunig of Burlingame injured in an automobile accident in Burlingame December 18, 1934, was awarded $4,000 damages against Mario, Diamira and Paul Silva Tuesday by Judge Maxwell McNutt in superior court. Grunig had claimed $15,487.50 for injuries received when his machine collided with a truck owned by the Silvas. Counsel for Grunig was Attorney Francis N. Foley of San Mateo.

FIESTA PICTURES STIR MIX-UP
Call Comes As Mrs. Hubbard Splashes in Tub
BUT ARGO, WYATT COME TO AID

Chrysanthemums, a bath, a news photographer and dancers got all mixed together in Redwood City Wednesday but when the complications were settled the photographers had their pictures and Roscoe Wyatt, chamber of commerce manager, and A. C. Argo, Sequoia principal, gained somewhat of a reputation as magicians.

For it transcends mere efficiency to produce dancers in silk dresses posed in fields of chrysanthemums, and all at a moment's notice.

Yet that's what Wyatt and Argo did.

They had to because Mrs. Anita Hubbard, publicity manager of the county floral and products fiesta was taking a bath when she received a message from the Associated Press that a photographer was on his way down here to get pictures for fiesta publicity, preferably something with flowers and girls in it.

Fully dressed Mrs. Hubbard would have been capable of the feat but not while in a bathtub. So she telephoned Argo and Wyatt.

The dancers were easy. Vera Jansen, Sequoia dancing instructor, produced six girls who will dance at the fiesta in October and had them in costume in a few moments' notice.

And since it was harder to move the chrysanthemums to the girls than it was to move the girls to the flowers, the party adjourned to gardens on the outskirts of the city where the photographer got beautiful shots of the girls in flowing robes against a floral background.

The dancers were Lorraine Smith, Georgia Northon, Arline Peak, Winifred Hennessy, Peggy Armstrong and Mary Lou Hoffman.

Floyd B. Whitsell
Dies in San Mateo

Following a lengthy illness, Floyd B. Whitsell of 248 Jackson street, passed away on Tuesday at the Community Hospital in San Mateo. He has resided here for the past eight years and was an active member of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of this city. He was the husband of the late May Whitsell, who passed away here two years ago.

He is survived by three children, Mae, Floyd and John Whitsell; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Whitsell. He is a brother of Mrs. Florence Retter of San Francisco, Mrs. Bertha Shattuck of Olney, Ill., Mrs. Elizabeth Fay of Chicago, John Whitsell of La Grande, Ore., Mrs. Harriett Fortney and Mrs. Gladys Strain, both of Palo Alto.

Shortridge Fee Case Is Again Revived

The long drawn out controversy over an $8,800 fee collected by Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., as receiver for the Lumberman's Reciprocal Association, was revived yesterday with appointment of Ernest E. Williams, United States commissioner, as special master to hear further testimony.

The appointment was made by Federal Judge Frank H. Norcross of Nevada, who on January 4 ordered the money paid over to E. Forrest Mitchell, former state insurance commissioner, by Shortridge or his bondsmen.

Mitchell claimed the $8,800 as part of the assets of the reciprocal association, an insurance concern. He won in the district court, but the case was carried to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which upheld Mitchell.

HENDRICKS WINS POST AS WPA CO-ORDINATOR

Ferrell Rules Co-ordinator Post Is Legal If Engineer's Duties Not Usurped; James and Hawes Look On

Creation of a public works bureau to handle WPA projects was approved by vote of the board of supervisors Monday and W. W. Hendricks, Belmont and Hillsborough city engineer, was named co-ordinator, in another troublesome session marked by attempts of County Engineer Carl Scott's attorneys to gain the floor to voice their protests. Attorney Ernest Wilson, counsel for Scott, voiced a defy when he said he would have Hendricks served with the restraining order issued by Judge R. R. Syer at San Jose preventing anyone from interfering with Engineer Scott for at least another five months. Supervisor Albert Witt Jr., Colma, pointing out that WPA projects worth $1,112,000 were at stake, warned Wilson and others of the responsibility in interfering with the duties.

KELLOGG CHOICE
Hendricks, who was selected for the office by County Executive Walter Kellogg, will receive a salary of $3600 for the new post, or $300 per month. Kellogg notified the board that Hendricks will resign his positions at Belmont and Hillsborough in order to take the new job.

Hendricks was present during the discussion. Others who looked on with interest were Engineer Scott, Urban S. Marshall, engineer-appointee; former Engineer James S. James, now WPA manager, and H. Gordon Hawes, WPA district manager. James and Hawes were seated together as front-seat spectators during the controversy.

RULES BUREAU LEGAL
District Attorney Gilbert Ferrell informed the board that it would be legal to create the works bureau and appoint a coordinator provided the department did not attempt to "intrude" on the duties of Scott or to "take over or usurp" the engineering department.

Ferrell said some doubt had been raised over the need of the bureau and foresaw that the board in creating the department "was heading for a certain amount of controversy and difficulty."

LEAVE ROADS TO SCOTT
Witt, in reply, declared that what the county board was attempting was in line with what San Francisco had done. He explained that Scott would be left in charge of all roads not classified, and would be left with adequate machinery to maintain his department. All other projects would be handled by Hendricks.

Hendricks will have complete control of all relief employment, will fix compensations, will pass on all claims, and will confer with city governments and district boards on all projects to be done under WPA.

HARRIS QUERY FILED
Request of Hatheway A. Harris, vice president of the new San Mateo County Civic League, for an explanation of the need of the new bureau, was filed, and Harris is to be notified that if he will call a conference for Kellogg's office, the board will tell him in private why the department is needed.

Supervisor Fred Beer, San Mateo, and John Poole, Redwood City, were not present, as they are away on vacations. Both voted for the creation of the bureau last week.

NEW LATERAL AT SAN BRUNO GETS BACKING

Lobitos Bridge Wage Dispute Flares Before Board

Submission of the South San Francisco-San Bruno lateral as a WPA project was ordered today by the board of supervisors after the project was submitted by Engineer Ronald Campbell of the planning commission. The lateral will cost $28,115.

The new highway will connect with Linden avenue near the Bayshore highway and will extend to El Camino Real at San Bruno. It will open up new industrial lands. The right of way is being donated by the South San Francisco Land & Improvement Company, of which Percy Shaw is agent.

BRIDGE DISPUTE FLARES AGAIN

With Herbert J. Williamson, attorney for the state labor commission, here to see if wage laws have been violated on the Lobitos bridge project, a new dispute flared before the board of supervisors Monday on the project.

Inspector Harry Arnold informed the board that it would take another month to complete the span and that its cost would be considerably greater than Engineer Carl Scott's estimate of $3500. Scott said if the board would stop "trying to harpoon somebody," that he could get the work done.

J. F. Cambiano, union agent, voiced a protest on the wages being paid. Scott informed the board that prevailing wage laws do not apply because the Lobitos span project is not a contract job. He pointed out that the board, in paying Arnold $10 a day as inspector, was violating its own wage ordinances.

OTHER MATTERS BEFORE BOARD

Other actions taken Monday included:

Granted soft drink licenses to J. V. Neuman, Woodside, and Della Strohmalter, Sharp's Park; Postponed sale of Visitation Valley $25,000 school bonds for one week;

Filed for consideration one week hence the petition of H. F. Meyers and 82 other Cuesta La Honda residents for additional improvement of La Honda road;

NOTES on SPORTS

By HENRY M'LEMORE

United Press Staff Correspondent

DETROIT, Oct. 3 (AP)—When

Brother Aesop, in need of a little ready cash, perhaps, sat down to his typewriter centuries ago and banged out that yarn about the tortoise outfooting the hare in a match race at a track outside Athens, he little realized that it would one day threaten the success of a Detroit baseball team in the world series.

But the story already has cost the Tigers the first game against the Cubs, and might very well cost them the next three. You know the story I'm talking about. It's the one where the hare, 1-to-10 favorite in the betting, shows lots of early foot and, ahead all the way, hits the top of the stretch leading by 20 lengths. He looks like a shoe-in.

But just as his backers head for the pay-off windows he pulls up and starts chatting with a honey of a bunny who gives him the ol' come-hither look over a carrot top. And with the hare busy arranging a date for the cabbage patch at eight, the plodding tortoise, under hard driving, beats him to the wire.

The moral of the story is something to the effect that the race is not always to the swift. It's a cinch all the Detroiters read as children, and to a man, belied it.

Otherwise, how are you going to explain why they play baseball with all the speed and dash of a bunch of lead soldiers with flat feet? Yesterday the Cubs ran circles around them just as the Cardinals did last year.

Mr. Costello would do well to take the boys aside and tell them the moral of Mr. Aesop's story is a phoney, and that the tortoise, 99 times out of 100, is to the swift. The very fact that the tortoise got so much publicity out of his victory is proof that it was an upset. Nobody ever heard of the tortoise finishing in the money again.

It's hard to explain, this reluctance on the part of the Tigers to play fast baseball. Lawdy knows, they've got an incentive. Like you, I don't believe the Tigers care ainker's damn about avenging the licks their predecessors took from the old Cubs in 1907 and 1908.

I doubt if a man on the team could even name the Detroit team of 1908. But that $2,000 difference between the purse of the winner and the loser is enough to make 'em hustle.

But hustle they won't.

Bruins Head North For O. S. C. Game

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3 (AP)—Coach Bill Spaulding today leads 31 Bruins on a football heira that will pit them against Oregon State at Portland next Saturday and Stanford at Palo Alto the following week-end.

The University of California at Los Angeles team was counseled by their coach, "don't worry about Stanford until after we play the Beavers."

120s Defeat Invaders 20-13; 110s Win Easily, 15-3

By MARSTON GIRARD

With Ken Diehl and Bill Johnson supplying the scoring punch, Sequoia's 120s yesterday defeated Mt. View high 20-13 here. The 110s ran roughshod over their less experienced opponents, winning their easiest game of the season, 15-3.

"What's the matter with the 110s?", is the question going the rounds today. Despite their easy win they seemed to lack something that makes a good combination.

They have the material for a good team, an all-veteran five, but so far have failed to click. Yesterday they again missed a large percentage of their shots at the hoop.

Every man on the 110s saw action yesterday except Bob Whitmore, first string forward out with a cheek injury. He is expected back in the regular lineup soon.

The 120s jumped into an early lead and were ahead, 10-4, at the half. Long shots kept Mt. View in the game during the second period, but their offense in and around the basket was stopped.

Diehl, Johnson and Martins in the forward wall hit the rebounds hard and scored most of their points close to the hoop. Little "Bo Bo" Harlon started at guard for the first time and played good ball beside the dependable Charley Meyers.

SCORE HIGH

Diehl and Johnson were high scorers for the 120s with six points apiece.

Alves was top in the 110s encounter with four markers to his credit.

Billy Royer for the 110s and Bill Johnson for the 120s were captains.

PALO ALTO WINS

Day before yesterday the Palo Alto high school lightweight quintets defeated Mountain View at Palo Alto, the 120s by a 19-16 count, while the 120s triumphed 16-5. This was the third straight win for the Viking hoopers.

The events were arranged by Tommy Cello and Joe Marquez.

HE FACED CUBS TODAY Bridges Has Curve, Speed

On Tommy Bridges blinding speed and deceptive curve ball the Detroit Tigers tested their hopes of breaking the winning streak of the Chicago Cubs, winners yesterday, 3-0, in the opening game of the world series.

Hamilton, Adams Rejoin Card Grid Squad This Afternoon; Injured Stars May Not Play

Following the example set for by all-American Bobby Grayson, injured fullback, "Bones" Hamilton, halfback, and "Woody" Adams, guard, had left the Palo Alto Hospital this morning where they had been confined for nearly three days with ankle injuries.

Hamilton and Adams didn't care any more for the close confinement at the hospital than Bobby did and today they had finally won approval from Team Physician E. F. Roth to join their teammates on the football field.

Grayson was out last night and while he reported that his sprained ankle was still sore, managed to participate in signal practice. Bobby still favors his left leg while running and it still is doubtful whether he'll play against the University of San Francisco Dons next Saturday. Thornhill probably won't make an announcement until tomorrow when Grayson himself will be able to tell how his ankle behaving. Even if Grayson does report himself in good health, the Stanford coach won't play him unless the strong running fullback is needed.

Hamilton is nursing a sprain in his right ankle and an infection in the left foot while Adams strained a ligament or two on his left ankle. They also may be kept out of action Saturday.

Thornhill went ahead with his plans to use three sophomore players in the backfield for the Don game, pending final word on the condition of his injured regulars. He had Coffis and Vigna, halfbacks; Paulman, quarterback, and the veteran, Frankie Alustiza, for his first-string backfield last night. "Tiny" ordered a scrimmage for his second and third-string teams but limited the first team to signal practice.

Keith Topping, regular right end who has been out of action with a broken rib, turned out in a suit and indulged in a light workout. Neils Larsen, reserve tackle last year, who reported for practice Monday, participated in the scrimmage.

HELEN MOODY OUT OF NET TOURNAMENT

BERKELEY, Oct. 3 (AP)—The show went on without its star performer today as Mrs. Helen Willis Moody fell by the wayside in the intense competition of national and international stars in the Pacific Coast tennis championships.

It was not in singles play in which she is the women's world champion, but in mixed doubles that Queen Helen met her downfall.

Mrs. Moody and her partner, Edward ("Bud") Chandler, one-time state champion, bowed before Nancy Lyle of England and Henry Culley of Santa Barbara in a second round match yesterday.

The English girls, members of the Wightman cup team, did well by themselves in yesterday's matches, and Don Budge, Oakland Davis cup star, led the men's field into the fourth round with a 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 win over Joe Hunt, Los Angeles junior star. Budge

JEAN WANTED TO "SEE LIFE" BEFORE SETTLING DOWN TO MARRIAGE: HER STORY, BEGINNING ON THIS PAGE, IS THRILLING MODERN ROMANCE

CHAPTER I

AFTER a long drowse, America decides to wake up. A lanky giant, carefree under the sun . . . as long and brown as the great rivers that loop across its plains—and as unexpectedly powerful, too, when its course is obstructed . . . the giant yawns, stretches, looks out over the continent-wide panorama of busy life, and begins sweeping the vermin that have been pestering it into the sea.

What is the giant like, and what are the vermin, and how is it all happening? To answer calls for a moving picture camera with a thousand lens; a camera that can look into every aspect of American life, the good and the bad, the spectacular and the humdrum, picking up a myriad unconnected pictures and displaying them in a pattern which falls together, at the last, like a jigsaw puzzle when it is completed.

Pictures of America! America being heedless and selfish, America coming to its senses and girding for a fight, America welding brain and muscle into one gigantic job of house-cleaning—the world's greatest nation, displaying its raw strength and its reckless vitality and its salty, saving humor in a triumphant struggle to show that Uncle Sam is still the homely and admirable chap he was in his youth. . . .

A good-looking girl, with maize-yellow hair and eyes that haven't looked at the world long enough to know how seamy its underside can be, looks up from her table in a night club . . . she's thrilled to death to be there and she thinks she's being just a little bit wicked, in a perfectly nice way . . . she looks up from her table and smiles at the sandy-haired chap who is beaming down at her, and she says, "How do you do, Mr. Harkins?" . . .

A clerk in an airy Washington office yanks a green drawer out of a ceiling-high filing cabinet, rifles through it with practiced fingers, and draws out a card. On the card there is a man's picture, along with ten inky smudges and half a dozen lines of type; and pinned to it is a smaller card, colored red, with the word "Wanted!" on it in big black letters. . . .

A big automobile stops in a lane by the veranda of a western ranch house, and a hard-faced man sticks his head out of the front window; and a broad-shouldered youth gets up from the veranda steps and says, "Okay, Joey," and puts himself and his suitcase into the car, and it spins off to the northeast over the rolling, treeless hills where the famous bad men of the old west used to have their hide-outs. . . .

A sallow, worried-looking man sits at a desk in a Chicago doctor's office. The telephone jangles; he answers, says "Yeah . . . yeah . . . I'll be right over," and takes a last, furtive look around the place before he locks up and goes out. . . .

A man in a Chicago apartment writes down a phone number on the varnished woodwork over a closet door. . . . An ambitious youngster fresh out of college sells a big sedan to a well-dressed stranger, and goes home congratulating himself and trying to figure how soon he'll have enough money to get married. . . . A politician grins as his visitor shuts the office door behind him, and puts a fat sheaf of bonds into his safe. . . . A tired police detective drinks a glass of beer and says to his friend, "Ysee, Bill, it's like this—the big lug's got an in down at city hall." . . .

And four very tough-looking gentlemen walk into a small-town bank in the middle west, swing gun muzzles menacingly, and walk out presently with a small fortune in cash and securities. . . .

So what? So it's all part of the panorama, and it all makes sense if you string it together right. It makes sense because some people are foolish and some people are downright bad and some other people are both wise and good; and out of it all you can get a new slant on your America, and perhaps a new pride in it, and a new understanding of what is going on in it.

We'll start with the girl in the night club.

JEAN DUNN smiled at Bobby Wallace and sat down at their table in the Golden Feather night club, saying to herself, "That man is kind of good-looking, and he's been watching me ever since I came in. I wonder who he is?" Blissfully ignorant of this, Bobby Wallace—who was not the good-looking man she referred to—took his seat opposite her and picked up the conversation which the general stir incident to the end of the last dance had interrupted.

"Listen, Jean, I mean it," he said. "You don't want to slave in a city office all your life. Wouldn't it be more fun—I mean, even if we didn't have such an awful lot, just at first—aw, Jean, honey, say you'll marry me!"

He leaned toward her, and his honest, snub-nosed face was very earnest. Jean put the good-looking stranger out of her head and reached across to pat Bobby's hand.

"Bobby, I like you a lot," she said. "You're just a peach. But can't you see my side of it? We're both of us so young. There's so much to do, and so much to see, before we get respectable and settle down. I'm spoiled, I guess, but I don't want to be just a housewife just yet. I want—oh, Bobby, I want to play. I've only been away from home for six months. I like being on my own. I like being independent. Don't you see I want to enjoy it a while?" Bobby sighed.

"You were in college for four years," he protested. "Yes, and if you call that being independent, you're crazy," she retorted. "I mean being out on my own, earning my own living and all. Don't you see?"

"But we could get the neatest little apartment," said Bobby, as if that answered her objections. "Regular little parlor-bedroom-and-bath arrangement, and you wouldn't be tied down. Why, you'd be more independent than you are now. You'd be more your own boss. You wouldn't have to trot down to an old office every morning. And pretty soon we could buy one of those new sport roadsters, and go—"

"PRETTY soon!" said Jean. "Bobby, dear, I don't want to hurt your feelings, but I'm just not one of these nice home bodies that can start out on a shoestring. It's not as if"—she paused, trying to pick her words tactfully—"Bobby, if you were on a regular salary it might be different. But you know yourself that selling autos is awfully, awfully irregular. One month we'd be flush and the next one we'd be living on salmon and crackers. The strain'd be too much . . . I guess I'm pretty selfish," she finished apologetically.

"No, no," said Bobby hastily. Then he said, "You mean—if I—suppose if I had a nest egg laid away—say a couple thousand dollars—would you look at things differently?"

She smiled at him, and Bobby reflected irritably that no girl with long droopy eyelashes ought to smile at a man in that way unless she wants to be kissed.

"You make me sound like a cheap little gold-digger, Bobby," she said.

"But would you?" he persisted. "Bobby," she said, "I like you better than any man I know or ever have known. I'd marry you tomorrow, only I'm not ready to marry anybody yet. And then—please don't be hurt, Bobby—I do think that if we did get married, we ought to be better prepared financially."

"Then," pursued Bobby, "if I can lay away two thousand dollars, will you marry me?"

She smiled at him with the fondness of a friendship that extended back to childhood; and she reflected that it would take Bobby, the newly launched auto salesman, a very long time to lay away any part of two thousand dollars.

"You do it, and then come and see me," she said, laughing. "Listen, the music's starting again. Let's dance."

CHAPTER II

AS Bobby pushed the chair back, they realized that two men had come up to their table. One of them was Art Lanning, the proprietor of the Golden Feather night club. He wore a dinner jacket, had dazzlingly sleek black hair brushed back from a pale forehead, and he seemed just a little bit too affable and suave to be entirely reliable; but then, Jean told herself, he must be all right, for hadn't her own boss introduced him to her?

Lanning's companion, she realized with a little, startled thrill, was the good-looking young man who had been so noticeably watching her from his table on the other side of the room. He was tall, and broad-shouldered, and although he wore his tuxedo as if he were used to it, he seemed to have an outdoors air about him, as if he belonged on the western plains somewhere instead of in this stuffy, overcrowded night club. Perhaps it was his hair that did it. It was sandy, and it refused to lie down in the well-trained manner of Lanning's; instead, a long forelock drooped down over his forehead, making him look like a cowboy who had got used to the city but who, nevertheless, intended to go back to the range some day.

Sandy was a good dancer. He asked, "I didn't bother you, did I, earlier, staring at you?"

Lanning was smiling his stereotyped smile—the smile of the man who is everybody's friend but who watches all the angles, just the same. He put his hands on the table and leaned his big bulk over them.

"You don't mind if I introduce an old friend of mine, do you?" he said. "This is Sandy Harkins—Sandy from the hair and Harkins from the family. Sandy, this charming young lady is Miss Jean Dunn, and the lucky man with her is Bobby Wallace."

Bobby got up and stuck out his hand. Harkins extended a large, well-manicured hand and gave him a firm grip and a friendly smile. Then he turned back to Jean, to whom he had bowed while Bobby was getting out of his chair, and said, "We're not butting in, are we?"

They murmured polite denials.

"Well," said Sandy, "you know how it is. Here I am, a stranger in this town, sitting here wishing I could just have one dance before I leave, and not knowing a soul to dance with. And then my friend Art comes up, and I see him say hello to you folks as he passes your table, and so I get up my nerve and I think, 'Now maybe if Art takes me over and introduces me to those people, I could get that one dance—just one dance.'"

He grinned disarmingly, as if to say, "Shucks, I'm just a friendly guy from the country, and nobody gets mad at me." Then he turned to Bobby and said, "Would you object if I asked your young lady for just one little dance?"

His voice sounded vaguely southern, or western, or something, Jean thought. It was lazy and pleasant, and it made you like him. Even Bobby seemed to be taken with him.

"Not at all," said Bobby, grinning back at him.

Sandy Harkins turned to her again.

"Lady, I need a dance awful bad," he said. "I'll bring you back safe and sound to your boy friend as soon as the music stops."

"Then," said Jean, "we'd better start, because this number's going to be over in another minute."

SHE got up, slipped into his arm, and they glided away as smoothly as possible, considering the crowded state of the dance floor. He was a good dancer, she discovered, moving with the effortless grace of the born athlete; for a moment he was silent, as he maneuvered her through the crowd. Presently he looked down and grinned.

"I didn't bother you, did I, earlier, staring at you?" he asked.

"Were you staring? I didn't notice."

"No? Baby, don't tell papa lies. Anyhow, I didn't mean to bother you, and I hoped you wouldn't be mad. But how could I help looking at the prettiest girl in the place?"

This was pretty obvious, thought Jean; still, she admitted, it was rather pleasant. She made some flippant reply, and he went on talking in an easy, lazy drawl. She learned that he was in this city of Dover temporarily, that he had no idea how soon he would leave, that he was in some sort of business—she wasn't quite clear just what—that kept him traveling about a great deal, and that he had no hesitation whatever in declaring that she, Jean Dunn, was tops. She grew gay and flippant in response to his mood, and before long she discovered that she was enjoying this dance very much indeed; so much so that she felt a genuine pang of regret when the music finally stopped.

"Would you just faint and fall in it if I should call you up some day?" he asked, as they started back to the table.

"No," she said slowly, "but you don't know my phone number."

"Don't worry about that, baby. What it takes to find out phone numbers grows on me. Would you hang up on me?"

She ought to tell him not to call; she knew that as well as she knew her own name. But what was the harm? A telephone call, after all—and besides, he was nice-looking, and he had an amusing way of talking. She found herself saying, "Try it and see."

They got back to the table, and Harkins and Lanning left them, after a few moments of inconsequential talk. Bobby followed them with his eyes as they walked away.

"Seems like a nice chap, doesn't he?" he asked.

Good old Bobby! thought Jean. He's probably jealous as can be, inside, but he's too nice to show it. And she had a sudden revulsion of feeling, in which she looked on Bobby with real tenderness, and told herself that she would marry him as soon as—well, as soon as—well, some day; and meanwhile, if Mr. Harkins did call her up she would just tell him that she couldn't see him. . . .

"Well, look who's out seeing the sights," said a man's voice. Startled, she looked up. Bobby had sprung to his feet, and was eagerly shaking hands with a quiet-looking, dark-haired man in a neat gray lounge suit; and as the man turned to her she recognized him and said, "Why, Larry Glenn—where'd you come from?"

LARRY GLENN shook hands with her and helped himself to a vacant chair at an adjoining table, which he drew up between her and Bobby. He sat down, leaned his elbows on the table, and smiled first at her and then at Bobby.

"I guess I'm getting old," he said. "The children seem to be growing up."

Seeing him was almost like going back home. She had not seen him since she and Bobby had been in high school. At one time he had been the unwitting object of her first schoolgirl crush; she had been a high school freshman then, and he had been a person of glamour and romance—the college football star, back in the home town to coach the high school football team. He had been a friend of her father's, and he had often dined in their home—and had looked down on her with an amused and friendly tolerance. Then he had gone east, somewhere, and she had heard that he had become a lawyer, and later she had heard that he had some obscure but interesting kind of job with the government. And here he was again, older and soberer now, with friendly eyes and a firm chin and an older-brother air toward both of them that somehow made them both feel that if they ever got in any kind of trouble they could go at once to Larry Glenn and be got out of it.

"What're you kids doing up here in Dover, anyway?" he was asking.

"Kids!" said Bobby indignantly. "That's swell. We've been out of college exactly one year."

"Bobby's selling autos, and I'm a swlegant stenographer," said Jean.

"She's a bug on earning her own living now, but some day she's going to marry me," said Bobby, ignoring the face she made at him.

Larry Glenn looked from one to the other.

"Well," he said, "I heard a couple of years ago that things were drifting that way—"

"They're not!" said Jean. Then she checked herself and said, "Well—not just now, anyhow."

"They're drifting that way," said Bobby, "but not fast enough."

"There's lots of time," said Larry. He looked at them fondly in silence, then turned to Jean.

"I got a letter from your dad telling me you were up here," he said. "I promised I'd look you up. No—hastily—not to keep an eye on you. Just to say hello, and maybe take you out to dinner once in a great while, if Bobby doesn't object too much."

"I don't object at all, to you," said Bobby. "It's handsome strangers like this Harkins guy that get me worried."

"That," sighed Glenn, "seems to indicate that I'm hopelessly unromantic and aged. And who is this Harkins guy, anyway?"

LOYALTY SUNDAYS GIVEN SUPPORT

Ministers Gather Here To Further Efforts Of Welfare Plan

Ministers of the southern part of San Mateo county met at the First Methodist Church, Redwood City, Monday, to consider the further promotion of plans of the Religion and Welfare Recovery Council of New York. The council, representing Protestants, Catholics and Jews, is enlisting the support of national, state and local governmental, social and religious groups in an endeavor to secure a widespread observance of religious and philanthropic activities during the month of October.

Participating in Monday's meeting were the following leaders of local congregations: Rev. Charles H. Gatchell, First Baptist Church; Rev. Victor Morgan, Woodside Congregational Church; Rev. R. B. Cherrington, San Carlos Community Church; Rev. Schuyler Pratt, St. Peter's Episcopal Church; Rev. Norman W. Pendleton, First Congregational Church; Rev. Paul Radley, Church of God; Rev. William J. Owen, First Methodist Church; Rev. Father Cavanagh, of Mt. Carmel Catholic Church, though unable to attend, voiced his interest in and sympathy for the movement. Rev. W. L. Staub of Menlo Park Presbyterian Church is also planning to follow the proposals of the council.

Following devotions, which were conducted by Rev. Gatchell, Rev. N. W. Pendleton spoke on the subject "Co-operation in Public Morals." He restricted the field of his paper to the matter of gambling in the local areas. Rev. Schuyler Pratt addressed the assembly briefly on the theme: "Co-operation in Matters Spiritual" discussing various forms of religious activities which would be advantageously served by united effort. Following the program the group adjourned to the Sunset Cafeteria, Palo Alto, for luncheon.

Tells District To Choose Civil Suits Instead

Sanitary Board Told Disincorporation May Be Answer

District Attorney Gilbert Ferrell in a letter addressed to the Bayshore District Sanitary Board today advised the members not to arrest persons dumping garbage in the district, as the board had proposed in a letter to Ferrell; counseled civil action rather than criminal; and told the board that in case it wished to escape responsibility in the dispute it should proceed first to disincorporate.

The board recently repealed its ordinance permitting garbage dumping and announced it would stand by the state sanitary act of 1923 which prohibits garbage being taken from one county to another.

Following this move it appealed to Ferrell for advice as to how far the district could legally go in preventing the dumping daily of 650 tons of San Francisco's garbage.

Ferrell said that in attempting to arrest any of the scavengers' Protective Union employees doing the dumping, the issue would be brought before the court as a criminal case and it would be necessary to prove the non-existence of a valid permit to dump the garbage before a conviction could be secured.

He counseled bringing of a civil suit against the scavengers' union through an application for a writ of injunction to enjoin the dumping of garbage in the district. The question then of the validity of the permit would come directly before the court and a decision favorable to the sanitary board would permanently enjoin the garbage dumping, Ferrell wrote.

Cost of this action should be borne by the district unless it disincorporated, the district attorney stated. The action will be hard fought and expensive and the cost of the litigation should not be a "burden upon the county."

Disincorporation would be the procedure, however, if the district desired to escape these responsibilities. By a two-third vote, Ferrell told The Tribune, the district could disincorporate.

The letter was addressed to Samuel Elliger, board secretary. Phillip Cain is chairman of the board.

Joseph Cappellini, 65, Dies in S. M. Hospital

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Following a brief illness Joseph Cappellini, 65, of South San Francisco, died yesterday at the Community Hospital in San Mateo. He is survived by his wife, Josephine. The body is at the Silvio Neri's funeral home here.

His home was at 877 Chiltern road, San Mateo. For the past year he had been San Francisco distributor for Fairchild airplanes and had an office at the San Francisco Airport.

MARRIED IN 1930
The plane in which he was killed was a monoplane, two-place sports model, and in the wreckage were found his guns and fishing tackle. Cole was the son of socially prominent Mrs. Charles C. Cole, 2755 Vallejo street. His marriage in 1930 to Miss Lenore Selig was a social event of the summer season.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fisher, friends of the elder Mrs. Cole, were in Eureka and took charge of the body pending instructions of the family.

CRESWELL COLE DIES IN CRASH

Motor Fails in Storm As He Wings Way To Orleans Bar

A Eureka morgue Tuesday held the body of Creswell C. Cole, 28, prominent San Mateo aviator, whose fishing expedition by plane to the Klamath river ended in a fatal crash late Monday.

Cole's body was found in the wreckage of his plane about four miles from Eureka.

Dense fog which came down to within 150 feet of the ground caused the accident.

Cole, on a hunting and fishing trip to Orleans Bar, landed at the Eureka airport yesterday afternoon. He refueled his plane and took off at 4 p. m. in the face of adverse weather reports.

LOUD CRASH HEARD
About four miles from the airport he attempted a turn at an altitude of 500 feet. Whether the motor failed or the plane went into a spin in the fog was unknown, but airport attendants heard a loud crash. It was more than an hour before sheriff's deputies and other searchers found the tangled wreckage in rough, burned-over redwood country. The crash had decapitated Cole. Cole was married and the father of two children, Creswell Jr., 3, and Lenore, 14 months.

SCOUTS SEEKING ADULT LEADERS

School for Training
Newcomers to Work
Opens October 28

An intensive county-wide recruiting campaign for Boy Scout leaders will be opened October 5.

The San Mateo County Leadership Training Committee, comprised of Homer Martin, superintendent of the San Mateo Union High School; C. E. Morris, dean of Junior College; Dr. A. H. Nobbs, Roy Pryor, Menlo School for Boys; and Victor Morgan, scout commissioner, completed plans for the drive at last night's meeting held at the scout headquarters.

The council has a twofold purpose in conducting a recruiting drive for scoutmasters, Sea Scout skippers, cubmasters and troop committeemen.

The first objective is to interest men in giving leadership to boyhood and thus give the many boys in San Mateo county, who are anxious to become scouts, Sea Scouts or Cubs, an opportunity to form new units in their neighborhoods.

The second objective which is a follow up of the first, is to enlist men in the school of scouting. This school will begin on Monday, October 28, and will last for five days.

The San Mateo county council's goal is to get quality as well as quantity in the new leadership. Further information may be had at 1204 Burlingame avenue, Burlingame.

Killed on Highway

A prize greyhound was killed on the Bayshore highway near Belmont and a second one was spared when they ran in front of the car of Henry Wegner, 230 Orchard avenue, Redwood City, Saturday afternoon, according to reports on file with the traffic bureau today. They were chasing a jackrabbit at the time.

The dog which was killed was white colored with brown spots on the left ear and black spots on the right. The other is a red dog.

Traffic Patrolman Frank Chevalier is holding the dog and information may be secured at the California Highway Patrol office in Redwood City.

OVER REPAIR
OF ITS CARSKellogg Tells Board
Of Plan to Effect
Large Saving

All county cars, about 36 in number, will hereafter be serviced and repaired at the San Mateo County Garage in Redwood City. County Executive Walter Kellogg informed the board of supervisors Monday in a plan to effect material savings. County trucks now are serviced at the Walnut street garage owned by the county here.

Kellogg said the cars have heretofore been serviced in other parts of the county at greater cost than the county could do the job. He also informed the board that he was studying a plan to provide galvanized iron sheds at the juvenile home for garaging the cars.

Supervisor Albert Witt Jr., Colma, spoke in favor of the idea, and said all county cars should be kept in a central place and not be allowed for private use during the night.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912 of Redwood City Times-Gazette, published weekly at Redwood City, California, for October 1, 1935.

State of California, County of San Mateo, ss.
Before me, a notary public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Sam H. Winklebleck, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the business manager of the Redwood City Times-Gazette, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 411 Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to-wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:

Publisher, D. E. O'Keefe of Menlo Park; editor, same; managing editor, none; business manager, Sam H. Winklebleck, Redwood City, Calif.

2. That the owner is: (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding one per cent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company, or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member, must be given.)

D. E. O'Keefe, Menlo Park, California.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state). None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which the stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of bona fide owners; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed through the mails or otherwise to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is (This information is required from daily publications only).
SAM H. WINKLEBLECK,
Business Manager.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st day of October, 1935.

14 GRAND JURY GROUPS
NAMED FOR COUNTY QUIZ

While a storm brewed outside and sheet lightning spread across the sky, the 1935 grand jury convened on Monday for its inaugural meeting at the courthouse and if there were any political uprisings smoldering only the faintest of rumbles seeped out from behind the closed doors of Judge Aylett Cotton's courtroom.

That subdued rumble was the statement by Allan F. Hunt, chairman, that the committee on gambling would report at the next meeting Friday evening on what it has learned about the situation in the county.

That would include, Hunt said, what jurors had "heard" and "read" about gambling in the county.

Otherwise the gambling situation was discussed only along general lines, as were the fields of the 14 committees appointed at the meeting. A third meeting was tentatively scheduled a week from today.

The committees were instructed by Hunt to start work immediately. District Attorney Gilbert Ferrell met with the jurors.

Any possible subpoenas to witnesses will not be issued until after the Friday meeting, Hunt said.

Possibility was seen that more light than usual may be shed on the secret operations of this grand jury when the chairman said a committee on publicity would probably be appointed and that stenographers would give releases to the press following each meeting. The fourteen committees are composed as follows:

County Clerk-Recorder—Public Administrator: R. G. Rose, chairman; Allen J. Ward, Mrs. Auretta Miller.

Courts, Superior and Municipal (Civil): Anthony Gaggero, chairman; Allen J. Ward, Charlotte Holbrook.

Fire Department—Fire Marshal: Frank Williamson, chairman; Mrs. Catherine Middleton, Ralph Mitchell.

Education, Schools, Libraries; Law and Public: Mrs. Esther M. Berg, chairman; Mrs. Lela Campbell, Mrs. Catherine Middleton, Charlotte Holbrook.

Law—District Attorney: Allen J. Ward, chairman; H. E. Casey, Mrs. Esther M. Berg.

Controller-Treasurer: Michael Boepple, chairman; Charlotte Holbrook, Ed. Weisenberger.

Criminal Dept., Police Courts, Adult Probation, Coroner: H. Lindholm, chairman; E. R. McDonald, Ed. Weisenberger.

Health, Hospitals, Homes, Relief, County Welfare Bureau: E. R. McDonald, chairman; Mrs. Lela Campbell, Michael Boepple.

MENLO PARK NEWS

The American Legion Auxiliary Menlo Park Unit No. 443 will meet at 8 p. m., Tuesday, October 8th, in the auditorium of the Central School on El Camino Real, for the purpose of installing the officers who have been elected to fill the various positions of the unit during the coming year.

They are as follows: president, Dora Scott Devol; first vice president, Ethel French; second vice president, Jeanette O'Neill; sergeant at arms, Josephine McCleary; secretary and treasurer, Elizabeth Lyon; historian, Ruth Syverson.

The county council drill team will have charge of the exercises, administering the oath of office. Many state and county auxiliary officials will be present. Friends of the unit are invited. Children must be accompanied by parents.

Dr. Joseph B. Weeden and his brother, William, will receive a large portion of the estate left by their late aunt, Miss Grace Pardee, according to the probate of the will in Redwood City this week. Other nieces and nephews to receive a share of the estate are Gordon Pardee, the famous St. Mary's football star, and his sisters, Catherine and Jeanne, and brother, Benjamin.

Everything is in readiness for the card party to be given in Central School Auditorium Monday, October 7, at 8:15 p. m., by the Menlo Park parlors of Native Sons and Daughters. Score cards are 25 cents. As this is the yearly whist party given for the benefit of the homeless children the committee earnestly requests a large attendance.

Isabelle Weeden Lindquist, musician for San Mateo County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary, and Clarissa Ross, historian, attended a luncheon given by the president of the council, Bertha Brady, in Burlingame Tuesday. After a delightful luncheon, bridge was played.

Mrs. W. H. Weeden, her daughter, Isabelle Weeden Lindquist, and children, Billy and Emma Roberta, spent the week-end in Monterey. Emma Roberta celebrated her 6th birthday at a party given by her grandmother at her great-aunt's.

2 Speeders Caught
After Long Chase

Two chases on the Bayshore highway over the week-end netted Linwood F. Stevens, 27, 408 East Bellevue avenue, San Mateo, and Richard S. Holloway, 30, 1033 Balboa avenue, Burlingame.

State Officer Frank Chevalier reported Stevens was doing 70 miles an hour and was chased for six miles from Millbrae to South San Francisco.

Holloway was clocked at 75 miles per hour and attempted to get away, Chevalier said. He was chased from South San Francisco to Burlingame, a distance of 10 miles.

Both motorists will appear before Justice Wade Clay at Daly City.

The world's shortest railroad, one-third of a mile long, is located in Vatican City.

Ocean Shore Seeks Transfer of Hearing

Motion for change of venue and notice of intention to file an affidavit of "prejudice" against Judge Aylett Cotton were heard here in superior court today where order to show cause why the State of California shouldn't file an additional $5,000,000 bond to insure the Ocean Shore Railroad Company from loss due to the state's confiscation of land for highway building purposes was contested.

A. De Voto, attorney for the railroad company, said he intended to have the case brought before a new judge. The case was continued to December 2 when hearing on a restraining order to prevent the state going on with construction work will also take place.
